FOREWORD

I never cease to be surprised by the way we Australians take on American influences. The latest manifestation of this is the so-called “Black Friday”. Essentially a bargain shopping event the day after the American Thanksgiving holiday, it has been eagerly grasped by merchants here as a day (or weekend) to promote sales and by customers hoping for bargains.

Thanksgiving though has no relevance to Australia unless you have American connections. I was surprised to be wished “Happy Thanksgiving” by an American client last week. It was very polite of him though I was bemused by this. I wonder if he’ll be as bemused when I call him on Australia Day and wish him “Happy Australia Day”!

The other event we have taken on board here is Halloween. Fun for the kids perhaps but this also has no real connection to Australia.

At least we can still say “Merry Christmas” here unlike the almost universal American “Happy Holidays” cop-out for fear of offending anyone who doesn’t share your beliefs.

So before I end up sounding like a Scrooge, I wish you all a Merry Christmas and a happy and healthy New Year.

My thanks go to all who have supported us and enabled us to continue selling books in an open bricks and mortar bookshop. We are one of the very few such antiquarian bookshops still extant in Sydney.

We will close for holidays at 5pm on Friday 22nd December and reopen at 10am on Tuesday 16th January.

There will be many more interesting offerings in the New Year!
